Misc. &amp; Notes: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• According to a team equipment employee, "... the material for both the orange and white '94 regular jerseys was real garbage. After a couple of washings, it became brittle and didn't feel very nice. The white material for the regular away jerseys turned a nasty shade of gray and we were unable to make them white again. ## 1994 Throwback (Cont'd)

Misc. & Notes:

- Reproduction of 1965 style jersey & helmet, worn to commemorate NFL's 75th Anniversary. Orange home and white road uniforms were worn during consecutive games, September 18 vs. the Raiders and September 26th at Buffalo, respectively
- Specifications and details provided are as per inspection of 1994 game-used road "Throwback" jersey of John Elway. It must be noted, however, that the subject jersey was one of at least four different examples of this style which were authenticated by the firm Grey Flannel Collectibles (note their letter of authenticity shown in Fig. 94-17 below). Additionally, three examples were also known to have been authenticated by Lou Lampson (dba 100% Authentic) for American Memorabilia, Inc. auctions. It is suspected that the abundance of these so-called Elway Throwback "game jerseys" can be attributed to a quantity of overstocked blank Wilson jerseys of this style that were sold to a Denver-area memorabilia dealer and prepared as Elway jerseys for the purpose of being autographed. It is understood that a part of these jerseys were given to John Elway in payment for his services for autographing the remainder for the dealer. As these jerseys made their way into the public's hands over time, several have been incorrectly attributed as having been game-worn.
